IN AND ABOUT THE BLUFFS

Present Status of the Trouble in the Dodge Light Guards.

A HALT CALLED ON LICENSES.

Proposition of the Brick Plant Com pany-Death of a Noted Driver-Drawings at the Trades Display - Personals.

The Dodge Light Guard I ifficulty. Judging from all accounts, there is a good sized row to be settled before peace and harmony is restored between the officers and privates of the Dodge Light Guard. The fight seems to be based on Aitchison and anti-Aitchison, and neither side is disposed to quit until the opposition is vanquished. As nearly as can be ascertained, it seems to a fight between the two lieutenants, Aitchison and Dixon, on one side, and the members son and Dixon, on one side, and the members of the company on the other. An account of the trouble at the recent election of a captain has already appeared in these columns. It is admitted by all the members of the company that W. E. Foster, the captain elect, was elected to that position with the understanding that he should resign as soon as the company found a good man to take his place. This is just what aggravates the trouble. It is stated that Colonel Castie will not submit to any such tricky work, and if he finds that such is actually the case, will not submit to any such tricky work, and if he finds that such is actually the case, will set aside the election and order another one. This, however, is the very thing which the company wants. The only reason for electing Foster was simply to gain time, as Lieutenant Aitchison refused to grant a postponement of the election. The whole secret of the matter is that the company wanted to elect Captain Mount, of Shenandoah, and to this the lieutenant objected. Members of the company were in correspondence with Captain Mount, relacorrespondence with Captain Mount, relative to accepting the position, but no definite arrangements had been made, and for this arrangements had been made, and for this reason the company wanted the election deferred. Lieutenant Altchison was opposed to the election of Captain Mount, and declared openly that he would not serve under him. Members of the company assert that Lieutenant Aitchison was so anxious to secure the election himself that he rushed things a little too fast for his own good, and they were companied to do as they did to out. they were compelled to do as they did to out-match him. They state that the colonel will overlook their action when he hears the full particulars in the case, and they will request particulars in the case, and they will request to have the office of captain kept open until they find a suitable man to fill it, in case the recent election is set aside. They insist that there is no discord whatever in the company, except between the lieutenants and the privates, and that never before has the company acted so unanimously regarding any one matter. They express the opinion that Colone! Castle will insist on opinion that Colonel Castle will insist on Lieutenant Atchison getting into the camp with the company, or will relieve him of all command. Atchison has stated that he would retain his commission until August 12, the day of going into camp, and would then send in his resignation. Lieutenant Dixon was to do the same thing, thus leaving the company without a commanding of-ficer. The boys incline to the belief that the colonel will promptly sit down on this plan and will send a committee of three to Shenandoah this afternoon to wait upon the chief regimental officer. Lieutenant Atchison is also corresponding with Colonel Castle, and has presented his side of the case. The situation at present is somewhat peculiar. The treuble originated over a very small matter, which is nothing serious even now, but a step in the wrong direction is liable to bring on a general out break even if it does not result in the dis-banding of the company. The controversy regarding Captain Mount was at the bottom of the difficulty, and if all reports are true an explanation from that gentleman would throw a little light on certain matters. Lieutenant Dixon received a letter from him stating most positively that he could not accept the position, and members of the company say that he wrote them before the mat ter was decided and had given no final answer. One of the privates yesterday gave the following statement of affairs: "It is certain that Lieutenant Aitchison would have been elected to the captaincy in case Captain Mount would not accept, if he had not shown his hand in this manner. He is a good drillmaster, and that would have insured his election, with Mount out of the field. He got hot because we didn't elect him, and is now trying to get even by downing the company. This talk about the colonel making it hot for us and discharging a number of the boys is all buncombe. If he discharges a single man, that will be the move preceding the disbanding of the company, for the boys all stand together, and would not resign. Colonel Castle will not want to do that, for this is his best company, and we have the finest equipments of any company had not shown his hand in this manner have the finest equipments of any company in the regiment. I tell you, he will not want to let us go, and besides, we have some influence with him. We have ordered our new uniforms, which are to be the finest made. They will be full are to be the finest made. They will be full regulation style, similar to our old ones, only of finer material. We have ordered thirty uniforms and forty helmets. We will get the rest of the uniforms next winter, for we can't afford it now. We will sleep in the armory from now until time to go to camp, and drill from 5 to 6 o'clock every morning, when it is cool. Sergeant McNeal drills us, and he will take us to camp if the lieutenants flunk out on us.

"We propose to go to camp, and we will not come home empty-handed. We are not going to be imposed upon by anybody. Last year the boys were all stuck on Aitchison's work at camp, and if Captain Cowles had resigned then he would have been elected unanimously. That overcoat deal last winter settled it all, and the boys have not forgotten, although he says it was all amicably settled. Captain Foster, Sergeant McNeal and Corporal Finley will go down to see the colonel to-day and explain things, but I tell you right now that discharges won't go."

dry company. Local Bearing of the Inter-State Law. It seems that the inter-state commerce law has a hearing on the question of enforcing ncenses from the Omaha grocerymen, peddlers, venders and common carriers who cross the bridge to do business in this city. For some weeks past the mayor and city council have insisted that all these parties should pay a license for doing business n Conneil Bluffs, and several arrests have followed. The United States supreme court now steps in and says it cannot be done un-der the provision of the inter-state law, and in accordance with this ruling the mayor has in accordance with this ruling the mayor has issued an order to the marshal and chief of police that these parties are not to be interfered with in the future. The ruling applies to book canvassers and all others having any articles to sell who come from outside the state. Those who reside here will have to pay as usual if the authorities are disposed to make them. The prevailing idea seems to be that the result will be to send Council Bluffs peddlers to Omaha and the Council Bluffs peddlers to Omaha, and the Omahans to Council Bluffs. What the final outcome will be it is hard to determine, but one thing is settled, that the howl about unjust discrimination against Omaha business men is at an end. Take your pennies to the "Famous."

The Proposed Brick Making Plant. Interest in the new brick making scheme s growing apace, and the general expression s one of hope that the projectors of the enterprise will carry it through to a successful completion. The importance of the enter-prise is recognized by the city officials and private citizens alike, and all unite in extending encouragement. Mr. E. A. Wickham, of this city, who is one of the originators of the idea, and is pushing the matter as fast as possible, stated yesterday that a proposition would at once be submitted to the city council and board of trade. Said

"We will make them a fair and square offer to put in a plant to cost $50,000, on condition that we are guaranteed a home market for our brick. We will not ask them to give any contract for furnishing brick, as all we want is a home market, an 1 we will see to it that our prices are such as will secure us the contract. If we are given this encour-agement, and the plant is put in, there is not the slightest doubt but that it will be increased to a $100,000 plant inside of three

Members of the board of trade who have talked regarding the matter express themselves as greatly in favor of it, and assert that it will result in far greater benefit to this city than any enterprise which has been secured for Council Bluffs in some time. The secured for Council Bluffs in some time. The establishment of the plant hinges on the action of the city council. If that body is willing to let contracts for putting down 75,000 yards of paving the plant will be put in otherwise it is not assured. The commany does not insist that the work shall be done dees not insist that the work snall be done this year, in fact they do not want it done until next season, but they want the contract let to assure them that there will be a market in the city next year. The projectors do not rely on the home market for their sole support, however, as they claim to be able to compete successfully with any similar plant in this part of the country. It is hoped that the necessary guarantee will be forthcoming and work on the new plant commenced very

The deceased was born in Indiana March 4, 1854. From his boyhood he evinced the greatest admiration for good horses, and when little more than a lad mounted the sulky to drive some of the fastest flyers in the west. During his career upon the turf he brought out a number of fast horses, and he brought out a number of fast horses, and became widely known among horsemen. He was delighted in his avocation, devoting to it his best energies, and did his full share toward making the driving circuit a success and elevating it to a plane that would be the delight of such men as Robert Bonner and the princes of the trotting turf. He was a skillful and conscientious driver, and transplant draws his rages for all there and invariably drove his races for all there was in them. While here he visited "The Maples," the thoroughbred breeding stud of Messrs, John T. Stewart & Son. He was so pleased with the stallions and mares that he saw there and with their oroduce that he inpleased with the stallions and mares that he saw there and with their oroduce that he induced those gentlemen to price him a yearling colt, the chestnut, Pan, by Panique, winner of the Withers and Belmont; dam, Neuitzen, by imported Mortemer, out of imported Genesta, by King Tom, a great slashing fellow. The Situation Riled Him. "I would like to be a newspaper man for just one day," remarked a well known Bluffite yesterday, "and I would give the railroad companies a warming that they would remember. I see that the Union Pacific will go in for building a union depot in Omaha, for a bonus of $150,000, provided the Iowa lines will all come across the bridge and run into it. Think of it. Wants them to run by and leave us here for a wayside stopping place. These are all subsidized roads, mind you, and received almost enough from the people to build their lines. Now they want to go jumping over the river and let us whistle, after giving them thousand sands and thousands of dollars. If they ever try that on we will plass a granger law that will make their heads swim. What's the matter with a union depot for Council Bluffs! Why nothing, of course. It just makes me hot to think about shat," and the choleric in-dividual started out on an unnihilating trip.
